

Women in the Judiciary Circuit Courts, 2020

Wisconsin Women's Council
December 2020

Women as a Percentage of Judicial Seats on the Wisconsin Circuit Courts, 2005-2020

29%

Women hold 29% of judicial seats (73 out of 249 total seats) on the Wisconsin Circuit Courts, up significantly from 17% in 2015.

The large increase in the percentage of female office holders between 2015 and 2020 puts Circuit Court Judges among the state's fastest growing elected offices for women. Even so, Wisconsin lags the national average of 33% for comparable state court systems (National Association of Women Judges).

52%

 Have No Female Judges

Despite the higher percentage of judicial seats filled by women, just over half of Wisconsin's 69 County Circuit Courts* (36, or 52%) have no female Judges, down from nearly three-quarters (52, or 73%) in 2015.

44%

 of Chief Judges are Female

4 of the 9 Chief Judge positions are currently held by women, compared to only one in 2010 and none in 2015. The Supreme Court appoints a Chief Judge for each of the state's nine judicial administrative districts.

*Each of Wisconsin's 72 counties has at least one branch of the circuit courts, except six that are paired and share judges, for a total of 69 circuits. Of these, 26 circuits have a single judge, the rest have 2 or more, with the largest being Milwaukee with 47.
